

EDUNATIONAL'S REVIEW ON LAW AND LEGAL RESEARCH (ERLR)

Dear Reader,

Thankyou for showing interest in publication of your work at ERLR. Here is everything, you may want to know about the Journal.

ABOUT ERLR

ERLR is an online bi-annual peer reviewed open- access law journal with 2 Issues per year. The Journal focuses and revolves around contemporary or important Sociolegal issues and topics and is not restricted to any particular field or subject of law.

The Journal strives to promote interdisciplinary research entailing detailed study of law with other disciplines in the contemporary era, or analyze the prevailing socio-legal status quo suggesting ways forward by way of case analysis, studies, articles and research papers.

ERLR strives to provide a platform wherein every stakeholder can get a voice to express their thoughts/ concerns and contribute towards a stimulating and engaging intellectual thought-space, which may be used as an assistance by anyone aiming to achieve an understanding, knowledge or expertise in the socio-legal domain.

The first bi-annual issue of ERLR is published in the month of June whereas the second is published in the month of December of each year.

TYPES OF SUBMISSIONS ACCEPTED:

EduNational

ERLR invites original, unpublished manuscripts from all academicians, authors, legal professionals, and Law students in the following categories:

I. Long Articles (3000-6000 words)

The submissions should comprehensively deal with the theme of the topic and literature. Should contain comprehensive discussion about the topic concerned identifying current practice, any lacunae, offer constructive suggestions and conclusions on the theme/ topic. Theoretical pieces including Primary Research or Long Articles may also be submitted under this category.

II. Essays/Short Articles (1500-3000 words)

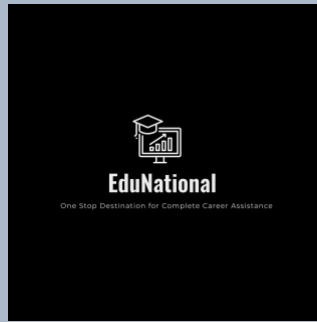

The submissions made under this category should be more concise and focused on the issue/ topic in question. It should also attempt to offer perspective, insights, critical analysis of the topic. The authors are free to use desired ways for conceptualizing their essays/ articles within the stipulated word limits.

III. Case Notes and Legislative Comments (1200-2500 words)

The submissions made under this category are meant for the analysis of any landmark or current judicial pronouncement, case law, legislative action, or policy proposal, etc. The authors should touch upon the backdrop of the development case/ legislation, issues, decision, aftermath and proceed to comment upon its implications on the evolution of law/ society. A legislative comment or policy proposal must identify the object and analysis of the actual/ expected impact of such policy/ proposal.

IV. Conspectus (8000- 10000 words)

We might occasionally publish a Conspectus, which is an 8000–10000-word descriptive piece on any legal issue. Relevant material (case law and secondary literature, including from comparative jurisdictions if helpful) should be organized thematically and presented clearly and coherently. Unlike a literature review, it need not tackle a particular area of law comprehensively but may focus instead on a particular question or issue.

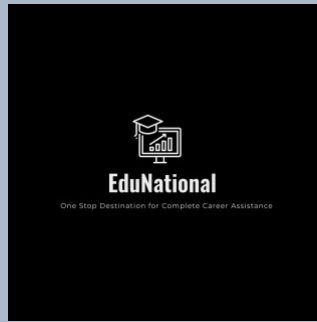

NOTE: All the word limits are inclusive of footnotes, tables, and appendices. The above-mentioned word limits are rough guides, and minor deviations are permissible.
